

David Schnier
Legal Counsel
Board of Advisors

David Schnier is currently a Vice President in Morgan Stanley's Law Division. David is primarily responsible for providing legal advice and counsel with respect to Morgan Stanley Smith Barney's $330 billion retail investment advisory business. David also acts as lead advisory counsel to Morgan Stanley's Private Wealth Management division, which specializes in the needs of ultra-high net worth individuals and families.

Prior to joining Morgan Stanley in 2004, David worked as in-house counsel for J. & W. Seligman & Co. where he advised on matters relating to mutual fund, hedge fund and institutional money management. Prior to that, David was an associate at Paul Weiss Rifkind Wharton and Garrison.

David is a graduate of Georgetown University Law School. During his tenure there he served as a member of the editorial board of the Georgetown International Environmental Law Review and published several law review articles on a variety of topics including international trade, the rights of women in sub-Saharan Africa and international environmental law. A native of New Jersey, David graduated with a BA in Philosophy from Rutgers University.
